

645C GYNECOLOGIC ONCOLOGY AT UC IRVINE MEDICAL CENTER

This rotation is not accepting international students

Course Description: The student will be expected to participate as a member of the oncology team caring for patients at UC Irvine Medical Center. The student will participate in the management of his/her patients under the supervision of the gynecologic oncology post-residency fellow, and will also assist in the operating room on selected cases of radical pelvic surgery. Weekly conferences have been selected at UC Irvine Medical Center which the students will be expected to attend. At the completion of the elective, the student should have an appreciation of the scope of gynecology oncology, which combines multimodalities in the management of female patients with pelvic malignancies.
